DOMESTIC ECONOMY!
CAMPILLION CARPET!
A new, cheap durable, healthy, and B
FLOOR COVERING!
A substitute for oil-cloth at one-third the cost.
This carpet is produced by a peculiar combination of strong, heavy paper, printed in ornamental colors, and coated with a tough, elastic, water proof enamel which receives the water, protects the colors and paper endures washing, and renders the carpet bright and beautiful in the extreme. Its advantages are as follows:—
Its cost renders it available to all classes; It is exceedingly smooth and glossy, and it accumulates next to no dust; It does not require to be taken up and cleaned like other carpet, and thus saves much labor and trouble; By re-coating with the Campillion Enamel occasionally as the case may require, (which costs but a trifle,) it will last indefinitely, even an age, and always appear new and bright; in its use no reliance whatever is placed upon the paper for wear, but exclusively upon she water-proof coating, the figured paper being used only to secure the colors. Paper has recently been used for a variety of purposes, even for trunks, roofs, floor bags and wearing apparel, but the first attempt, either in Europe or America, to convert it into carpet or floor covering, all concede it to be an entire success!
We have purchased the right for columbia county and can furnish the carpet to merchants at manufacturers prices,
☞ You are invited to call and examine the goods at our store.

Choice Poetry.

Lines to Lovers.

Ho pretty page with the dimpled chin,
That never has known the barber's shear,
All your wish is woman to win,
That is the way that boys begin,
Wait till you come to forty year.

Curly gold locks cover foolish brains,
Billing and cooing is all your cheer,
Sighing and singing of midnight strains
Under Bonnybell's window panes,
Wait till you come to forty year.

Forty times over let Michaelmas pass,
Grizzling hair the brain doth clear,
Then you know the worth of a lass
Then you know that a boy is an ass,
Once you have come to forty year.

Pledge me round, I bid ye declare,
All good fellows whose beards are gray,
Did not the fairest of the fair,
Common grow and wearisome ere,
Ever a month had passed away?

The reddest lips that ever were kissed,
The brightest eyes that ever have shone,
May pray and whisper and we not list,
Or turn away and never be missed,
Ere yet ever a month be gone.

Gillian's dead, God rest her bier,
How I loved her twenty years syne,
Marian's married, and I sit here,
Alone and merry at forty year,
Dipping my nose in the Gascon wine.
THACKERAY.

Miscellaneous.

A Quaker Detective.

We were five passengers in all; two ladies on the back seat, a middle aged gentleman and a Quaker on the middle, and myself on the one in front.

Two ladies might have been mother and daughter, aunt and niece, governess and charge, or might have sustained any other relationship which made it proper for two ladies to travel together unattended,

The middle-aged gentleman was sprightly and talkative. He soon struck up an acquaintance with the ladies, towards whom, in his zeal to do he rather over did, the agreeable—bowing and smiling and chattering over his shoulder in a way painfully suggestive, at his time of life, of a "crick" in the neck.—He was evidently a gay Lothario.

The Quaker wore the uniform of his sect, and confined his speech, as many a parliamentarian would save his credit by doing, to simple "yeas" and "nays." As for myself, I make it an invariable rule of road to be merely a looker-on and listener.

Towards evening, I was aroused from one of those reveries into which a young man, without being either a poet or a lover will sometimes fall, by the abrupt query from the talkative gentleman:

"Are you armed, sir?"

"I am not," I answered, astonished, no doubt visibly, at the question.

"I am sorry to hear it," he replied; "for before reaching our next stopping place it will be several hours in the night, and we must pass over a portion of the road on which more than one robbery is reported to have been committed."

The ladies turned pale, but the stranger did his best to reassure them.

"Not that I think there is the slightest danger at present," he resumed; "only when one is responsible for the safety of ladies, you know, such a thing as a pistol in reach would materially add to one's confidence."

"Your principles, my friend," addressing the Quaker, "I presume are as much opposed to carrying as to using carnal weapons."

"Yea," was the response.

"Have the villains murdered any of their victims?" the elder lady nervously inquired.

"Or have they contented themselves with—with—plundering them?" added the younger, in a timorous voice.

"Decidedly the latter," the amiable gentleman hastened to give assurance; "and as we are none of us prepared to offer resistance in case of attack, nothing worse than robbery can possibly befall us."

Then, after blaming his thoughtlessness in having unnecessarily introduced a disagreeable subject, the gentleman quite excelled himself in efforts to raise the spirits of the company, and had succeeded so well by the time night set in, that all had quite forgotten, or only remembered their fears to laugh at them.

Our genial companion fairly talked himself hoarse. Perceiving which, he took from his pocket a package of a newly invented "Cough Candy," and, after passing it first to the ladies, he helped himself to the balance, and tossed the paper out of the window.

He was in the midst of a high encomium on the new nostrum, more than half the efficacy of which, he insisted, depended on its being taken by suction, when a shrill whistle was heard, and almost immediately the coach stopped, while two faces, hideously blacked, presented themselves, one at each window.

"Sorry to trouble you," said the man on the right, acknowledging with a bow two lady-like screams from the back seat; "but 'business is business,' and ours will soon be over, if things go smoothly."

"Of course, gentlemen, you will spare, as far as may be consistent with your disagreeable duty, the feelings of these ladies," appealed the polite passenger, in his blandest manner.

"Oh! certainly; they shall be first attended to, and shall not be required to leave their places, or submit to a search, unless their conduct renders it necessary."

"And now, ladies," continued the robber, the barrel of his pistol glittering in the light of the coach-lamp, "be so good as to pass out your purses, watches, and such other trinkets as may be accessible without too much trouble."

The ladies came down handsomely, and were no further molested.

One by one the rest of us were compelled to get out, the middle-aged gentleman's turn coming first. He submitted with a winning grace, and was robbed like a very Chesterfield.

My own affair, like the sum I lost, is scarcely worth mentioning. The Quaker's turn came next. He quietly handed over his pocket book and watch, and when asked if he had any other valuables, said, "Nay."

He glanced furtively around, then with a queer smile the old hunter took up his rifle from the bottom of the wagon, and raising it to his shoulder, drew a sight on the Colonel's horse.

"Beautiful!" muttered Drake, lowering his rifle with the air of a man resisting a powerful temptation. "I could drop old Roan so easy!"

"Shoot," suggested Sam Barston, who loved fun in any shape.

"No, no 'twouldn't do," said the old hunter, glancing cautiously around him again.

"I won't tell," said Sam.

"Wal, I won't shoot this time any way, tell or not tell. The horse is too nigh. If he was fifty rods off, instead of twelve, so there'd be a bare possibility of mistaking him for a deer, I'd let fly. As it is, I'd give the Colonel five dollars for a shot."

At that moment the Colonel himself stepped from behind a big oak, not half a dozen paces distant, and stood before Mr. Drake.

"Well, why don't yon shoot?"

The old man stammered in confusion: "That you, Colonel? I—I—was tempted to, I declare! And as I said, I'll give a V for one pull."

"Say an X, and it's a bargain!"

Drake felt of his rifle, and looked at old Roan.

"How much is the hoss worth!" he muttered in Sam's ear.

"About fifty."

"Gad, Colonel, I'll do it! Here's your X!"

The Colonel pocketed the money, muttering: "Hanged if I thought you'd take me up!"

With high glee the old hunter put a fresh cap on his rifle, and stood up in his wagon, and drew a close sight on old Roan. Tom Barston chuckled. The Colonel put his hand before his face and chuckled too.

"Crack," went the rifle. The hunter tore out a horrid oath, which I will not repeat. Sam was astonished. The Colonel laughed. Old Roan never stirred!

Drake stared at his rifle with a face black as Othello's.

"What's the matter with you, boy? Fus' time you ever sarved me quite such a trick, I swan!"

And Drake loaded the piece with great wrath and indignation.

"People said you'd lost your nack a' shooting," observed the Colonel, in a cutting tone of satire.

"Who said so? It's a lie!" thundered Drake. "I can shoot—"

"A horse at ten rods? ha! ha!"

Drake was livid.

"Look here, Colonel, I can't stand that!" he bellan.

"Never mind, the horse can," sneered the Colonel. "I'll risk you."

Grinding his teeth, Drake produced another ten dollar bill.

"Here!" he growled, "I am bound to have another shot, any way."

"Crack away," cried the Colonel, pocketing the note.

Drake did crack away—with deadly aim too—but the horse did not mind the bullet in the least. To the rage and mutterable astonishment of the hunter, old Roan looked him right in the face, as if he rather liked the fun.

"Drake," cried Sam, "you're drunk! A horse at a dozen rods—oh, my eye!"

"Just you shut your mouth, or I'll shoot you!" thundered the excited Drake. "The bullet was hollow, I'll swear. The man lies that says I can't shoot! Last week I cut off a goose's head at fifty rods, and kin do it again. By the Lord Harry, Colonel, you can laugh, but I'll bet, now, thirty dollars, I can bring down old Roan at one shot."

The wager was readily excepted. The stakes were placed in Sam's hands. Elated with the idea of winning back his two tens, and make an "X" into the bargain, Drake carefully selected a perfect ball and even buckskin patch and headed his rifle.

A minute later Drake was driving through the grove, the most enraged the most desperate of men. His rifle, innocent victim of his ire, lay with broken stock on the bottom of the wagon. Sam Barston was too much frightened to laugh. Meanwhile, the gratified Colonel was rolling on the ground, convulsed with laughter, and old Roan was standing undisturbed under the trees.

When Drake reached home, his two sons, discovering his ill-humor and the mutilated condition of his rifle-stock, hastened to arouse his spirits with a piece of news, which they were sure would make him dance with joy.

"Clear out!" growled the angry old man.

"I don't want to hear any news; get away, or I shall knock one of you down."

"But, father, it's such a trick!"

"Blast you and your tricks!"

"Played off on the Colonel!"

"On the Colonel!" cried the old man, beginning to be interested. "Gad, if you've played the Colonel a trick let's hear it."

"Well, father, Jed and I, this afternoon, went out for deer—"

"Hang the deer—come to the trick."

Couldn't find any deer, but thought we must shoot something; so Jed banged away at the Colonel's old Roan; shot him dead!"

"Shot old Roan?" thundered the old man.

"By the Lord Harry, Jed, did you shoot the Colonel's hoss?"

"I didn't do anything else."

"Devil! devil!" groaned the hunter.

"Then,"

The Columbian
—AND—
Bloomsburg Democrat.

BLOOMSBURG, PA.

FRIDAY MORNING OCT. 22, 1869.

☞ THE COLUMBIAN has the Largest Circulation of any paper published in Northern Pennsylvania, and is also a much larger sheet than any of its cotemporaries; and is therefore the best medium for advertising in this section of the State.

Important to Editors and Printers.

WE have on hand, and will sell at low rates three hand presses, which have accumulated by the purchase of a Power and Gordon press, and by the consolidation of the Democrat with the COLUMBIAN.

1. A Washington Hoe Press, new, platen 41x26 inches. It was in use only ten months, with a light edition.

2. A Washington Hoe Press, formerly in Democrat & Star office, platen 36x24 inches. It is complete and sound.

3. A Washington Hoe Press, new, foolscap size, platen 19¼x14¼ inches. It is almost indispensable in an office not having a Gordon.

In addition to this we have a large quantity of bourgeois, nonpareil, rules, chases, job type, etc., sufficient to start an office, which we will sell in lots or together, as purchasers may prefer.

The County Vote.

The vote of this county is very satisfactory as usual; Packer's majority being 1869 upon a total vote of 5559. The Democratic vote is a little more than double that of the Radicals, and only falls short of that polled last year at the Presidential election, 308 votes. Considering the storm on election day and the absence of much excitement in the State canvass, this was a very fair result.

It will be observed that about a dozen voters of Madison who supported Packer, voted for Whitmoyer for Senator; and that a large number of Democrats in Orange voted against the Democratic nominee for Register and Recorder.—Our candidate for Associate Judge was cut in some districts and a few votes were withheld from other candidates, reducing their majorities slightly. All such departures from regularity of voting, although they affect no practical result, are to be deprecated, for they tend to weakness and disorder in party action and may provoke retaliation in the future.

The main disturbance was, of course, expected to be upon the vote for Senator, inasmuch as for that office there was a second candidate claiming to represent our party. Considering the amount of noise made in his behalf, the result was almost rediculous—224 votes (some of them Republican) out of a total poll of more than 5500 in the county.

After making all due allowance upon minor points, we may well feel proud of our county for her steadiness and fidelity, and may couut confidently upon her retaining her honor and reputation in the future.

The Recent Elections.

We had confidently counted on a victory in this State during the recent elections, but as the smoke of the contest clears away, we discover that we have been beaten by the beggarly majority of a little over 4,000; some 13,000 less than Geary's former majority, and about 25,000 less than Grant's last year. Our opponents have no reason to rejoice, but the Democrats can lay the flattering unction to their souls that the cause of our defeat lays at our own doors. Had we have fought as vigorously as the occasion demanded, to-day Asa Packer would have been our Governor elect, Williams would have been defeated for the Supreme Court;—and the reenactment of the present infamous apportionment bill would have been impossible. Thousands of dissatisfied Republicans purposely staid away from the polls, while very many voted for our candidate.

The main burden of responsibility rests upon the Democrats of Philadelphia, and a few such counties as Luzerne and Schuylkill. Columbia county, considering the weather, did well, polling a heavier proportionate vote than the Radicals, and losing less than Radical counties with the same persentage of votes. Yet it is a matter of regret that 500 of our voters staid at home because of the storm. While it would not have changed the result, it would have shown in unmistakable terms how utterly oppposed we are to the present administration.

The lesson of the election is that we have lost the State by apathy. Let us remember this in the future.

Hon. Charles R. Buckalew.

IN these hours of Democratic despondency, one cheering ray breaks through the gloom, to gladden the oppressed heart. Mr. Buckalew has been elected Senator in the Fifteenth District—by a majority of several hundred—over both his competitors. This is not only a victory for the true Democracy of Northumberland, Columbia, Montour and Sullivan, but one that will be of service to the party in the State. Mr. B. will of course, occupy a leading position in the Senate—and add fresh laurels to the chaplet which he wove for himself during his two terms in the same position.

Notwithstanding the claims of factionists that he was not fairly nominated, and the opposition which he encountered from jealous members of his party, the mass of the Democracy have awarded a verdict in his favor. The poor English twaddle written concerning him, from Benton and Jersey Shore has amounted to naught, and the author, or authors (if they were concocted in more than one ponderous brain) can console himself—or themselves—with the consciousness that the effusions obtained admission in the columns of that able luminary—the Berwick Gazette, To a mind that can produce such literature as the articles referred to, defeat is—in the language of Toots—a matter of "no consequence."—Lycoming Standard.

MONTOUR COUNTY:—Packer, 1555; Geary, 1066. Packer's maj. 489, which is a very fair one for that county. In Danville Geary's maj. is only 7, a Democratic gain. Mr. Buckalew's vote in Danville is 78. In Limestone township the vote on Senator stands:—Buckalew, 75; Whitmoyer, 26; Chalfant, 39.

"A Leading Man" of Sullivan county.

Doctor John M. Hewcock, alias John M. Haycock, alias John M. Hay, of Dushore Pa., has attained to the distinction of getting one of his names into the newspapers and of becoming widely known as the meanest man in Sullivan county. The Doctor (who by the way is but a bogus doctor or no doctor in fact,) has been proclaimed by Chalfant, Bradley and Sanders, as "a leading Republican of Sullivan county," and hence he becomes an interesting subject for examination.

From the variety of his names his identification may be thought difficult, but the man can be distinguished from all other Doctors, bogus or real, by clear lines of distinction. A low brow, a sensual look and a cackling laugh, will always direct to him the attention of strangers. And he belongs decidedly to the tribe of the unwashed; having a deep dislike to soap and water and to all the arts of personal adornment. But his beard is most deserving of notice. Light-colored, stiff and bristling it stands out most impressively from the back-ground of his face. Being a person of strict economy he trims it with shears instead of a razor, thus saving a considerable amount of expense per annum.

This county had the honor of his birth and his real name is Haycock. But many years since when an ambitious tailor, he petitioned the Legislature for a change of name assigning as a reason "the indelicacy" of the name derived from his parents. He desired to be known as Mr. John M. Hay (ha! ha! ha!) but his application was neglected or refused. Shortly afterwards (as it was reported) Mr. Petitioner Haycock visited his father and was informed by him that he was not acquainted with any person of his name.

Some years later Haycock proceeded to gratify himself and amuse others by changing his name himself, and he now turns up as Doctor John M. Heacock, "a leading Republican of Sullivan county."

Now to our tale. Early in September (when it was believed that there would be no Republican candidate for Senator in this district) the Democratic candidate for Senator was informed by a gentleman of Sullivan county that Haycock would probably vote for him. Thereupon he amused himself by writing a brief and harmless note to Haycock on the subject of his vote and to test his honor and decency marked it "confidential." The trial was too much for poor Haycock; he cackled over the little missive like a hen over a fresh egg, and finally rushed down with it all the way to Montour county and contributed it to the literature of the campaign. It was a sweet morsel for Chalfant and was greedily seized and appropriated by him. And then, Bradley and Sanders with that lack of judgment which was to be expected of them, copied the note into their journals with commendation of Haycock as "a leading Republican of Sullivan county." The insignificance of the note as an item for public information; its entire propriety both in object and language, and the impossibility that its publication could affect one vote in the district, were considerations which were quite overlooked by them. The luxury of participating with Haycock in the consummate meanness of publishing a confidential letter was too strong a temptation to be resisted.

But the subject is a little overpowering. Haycock may retire!

Falsehoods of the Canvass.

MANY statements made pending the late election by Chalfant, or in his interest, were permitted to pass unnoticed, or were but slightly answered. Time and occasion did not offer for their complete refutation. Occupied as we and others were with the general duties of the canvass it was hardly possible to keep up with the rapid concoction of falsehoods by the stump candidate and his backers; for as the contest went on they became more and more unscrupulous and desperate, and confining themselves to their single object—the election of a Republican Senator from this district—they were able to prepare and circulate more falsehoods than could be conveniently exposed and repelled by the friends of the Democratic nominee. Most of their inventions may still be treated, (as they have been hitherto,) with silent contempt; but a few of them we shall now pass under a brief examination.

1. The story that Mr. Buckalew had $9,000 furnished him by the Democratic State Committee, and that he only used it for his own purposes and withholding any part of it from the Democratic Committee of Montour.

Answer:—Considerably less than one-half the sum mentioned was furnished altogether by the State Committee for disbursement in nine counties (mostly larger than Montour) and mainly for the legitimate purpose of getting out the vote. A fair part was properly placed in Montour county and in fact that county with less than half the vote of Columbia county received ultimately from the State Committee a greater amount of pecuniary aid than was furnished to this County. This calumny was eagerly seized upon by the Republican newspapers and orators of the district and was used by them in the election, as were other calumnies concocted by Chalfant & Co., and intended for their advantage. The truth is that money was neither corruptly nor profusely used in this section by our party, as charged. We have no doubt that much more was furnished to this section by Covode's Committee than by ours, and we must be permitted to doubt whether it was, upon the whole, disbursed with equal fairness and integrity.

2. The story that the Chairman of the State Committee had asked Mr. Buckalew to decline running as a candidate, and had expressed the opinion that he was not properly nominated.

Answer:—The Chairman of the State Committee upon examining the official proceedings of the Senatorial Conference and the published statements of all the Conferees, was clearly of the opinion that Mr. Buckalew was regularly nominated; he never asked or thought of asking Mr. B. to decline; he was and is Mr. Buckalew's warm personal friend, sympathized with him thoroughly in the contest and now rejoices sincerely and heartily in his election.

3. That M'Ninch as a Conferee from this county "was authorized" to offer $1500 to one or both the Withingtons for support of Mr. Buckalew in the Conference.

Answer. This base falsehood was stated at several meeting by M'Ninch and Chalfant, and published in one of the circulars issued by the former. By Mr. Clark, the President of the Conference, it was branded as false at Jerseytown, and by Mr. Buckalew himself at Slabtown. The latter declared that neither the traitor conferee nor any one else had ever been authorized or permitted by him to make any offer whatever, in order to secure his nomination, whether to a Conferee or any one else; nor had he ever known or heard of such an offer made or to be made by M'Ninch or any other person on his behalf or in his interest.

This base lie was on a par with another vented by M'Ninch at Slabtown; that Hon. D. B. Montgomery, (one of the most honorable men in the district) had sold his vote in Conference three years ago for a large sum. The black-mouthed villain who manufactured these slanders upon honorable men, slipped to be sure from the platform in druken imbecility about the time he uttered them, but one of them has since been published and used by Chalfant in his canvass.

4. That Mr. Buckalew solicited M'Ninch to be a Conferee and that the latter never asked or sought the position.

Answer. We are assured by Mr. B. that he never exchanged words with M'Ninch on the subject of his appointment as a conferee, much less solicited him to become one; that he was urged to take him for several reasons, and acceded to the request against the inclination of his own judgment. That M'Ninch asked the appointment and earnestly sought it can be proved by Judge M'Reynolds who was enlisted by him to get Mr. B. to agree to it.

5. That Mr. B. in a private conversation with M'Ninch at Bloomsburg, proposed to prevent the nomination of any one else, and run as a volunteer candidate, and that at Northumberland he uttered similar sentiments.

Answer.—The statement of the discourse at Northumberland has been flatly contradicted by Judge Deegan, who was referred to by M'Ninch as present, and the alleged one at Bloomsburg by Mr. Buckalew at Jerseytown. The latter not only denied the M'Ninch falsehood, but clearly stated what was said at the time referred to: That instead of proposing to break up the conference and run as a volunteer, he told M'Ninch that Chalfant was claiming that he (M'Ninch) would ultimately vote for him and that the Northumberland men were also founding hopes upon him; that this condition of things was protracting the struggle which would end when it was understood that their hopes were groundless. He therefore desired to have authority to say that his conferees and those from Sullivan "would not giveway" in Conference as that would end the contest. That M'Ninch in parting held his hand and said to him "I authorize you to say to the Montour and Northumberland men, that we never will vote for either of their candidates," and then left.

In brief, both the discourses recited by M'Ninch were basely fabricated by him; the true discourses, those which actually took place, being the very opposite in character and looking to a regular nomination to be made in Conference.

6. That after the 202d vote in Conference there was a private consultation in Mr. Buckalew's room, that it lasted from 15 to 20 minutes or more, that the door was bolted, that then arrangements were made between Mr. B. and Mr. M. J. D. Withington that the latter should go for him (innendo, some corrupt bargain,) and that then the Conference reassembled and Mr. Withington changed his vote.

Answer.—This series of falsehoods can be flatly and completely contradicted by no less than seven witnesses, beside Mr. Meylert, the Secretary of the Conference, and perhaps others, who can contradict them in part. Those persons are Senator Jackson and Hon. James Deegan of Sullivan; Mr. Withington and Mr. Reber of Northumberland; Robert F. Clark, Esq., and David Lowenberg of this county and Mr. Buckalew himself. These men were all in Mr. B's. room during the five minutes recess and most of them all the time. Other persons were in casually. They will testify that Mr. Buckalew had no private consultation with Mr. Withington or any one else; that he did not leave the room for that or any other purpose; that the door was not bolted; that the recess was not protracted 15 or 20 minutes, and that he made no arrangement with Mr. Withington for his support and no conversation passed between them on the subject. Mr. Meylert remained in the Conference room engaged in writing out the proceedings, and he is of opinion that Mr. Withington turned to him before leaving the room and proposed to change his vote. This statement has been called in question and we agree that Mr. Meylert may possibly be mistaken in making it. Mr. W. may have actually gone outside of the room for a moment but if so he returned so quickly that his absence was not noticed by Mr. Meylert and made his proposition to change his vote. Be that as it may, there could have been no "consultation" or "arrangement" in Mr. Buckalew's room (and there was none) before he openly announced his desire and intention to change his vote.

If any one is curious to know what took place in Mr. Buckalew's room during that five minutes recess we can gratify him upon the authority of several who were present; the main if not exclusive topic of discourse was the infamous baseness of M'Ninch proclaimed in the vote which he had just given. Mr. B. was the least excited and indignant of the party. He stated that he had carried M'Ninch upon his nerves all day and felt relieved in throwing him off; that M'Ninch had taken his leap and was incapable of further mischief. Before this, when Mr. Withington came into the room, he had announced his intention to change his vote and thus prevent a fraudulent result to the pending ballot, against which course no objection or question was made.

But the falsehood of Chalfant's statement concerning the five minute recess is further shown by the published statement of Mr. Clark and Mr. Withington that the latter had informed Mr. Clark (and Mr. Buckalew also) sometime before that recess that he and his colleague Mr. Reber intended to vote for Mr. B. and would presently do so.

7. The last falsehood we shall notice is one (several times repeated,) concerning an article in the COLUMBIAN of Oct. 1st. Chalfant says we denounced him as unfit for Senator because he was a poor man; and thereupon he sounds the alarm to the people against our heretical doctrine.

Answer:—What we said in our article of Oct. 1st, was not that Chalfant was unfit for Senator because he was poor, but that he was regarded as "a fit subject for the manipulation of the "ring" and they turned their attention upon him as an instrument for their purposed" because he was "a man of moderate abilities, poor, ambitious, with self conceit greatly developed by former elections to and service in the Legislature" as well as because "he held control of a party newspaper" &c. This, fairly stated, was what was said by us and mostly our exact language, and we stand to it and repeat it. M'Grath, Ridgway and Randall of Schuylkill, (the men of the "ring" who made up a purse to defeat Mr. Buckalew's nomination,) duly considered all the circumstances which made Chalfant a fit "instrument for their purpose." His ambition, his extreme vanity and his pecuniary circumstances as well as his political position at the head of a paper in Montour county, were all taken into account, and the result shows that they did not mistake their man. He engaged with them in their infamous enterprise and did all he could to insure its success, because he was weak, needy and ambitious, and because his passions became enlisted in the struggle. Far be it from us to pronounce honest poverty to be a disqualification for office. Such rule would exclude most of our friends and ourselves from all chance of public position, and we agree that it is opposed to true principles of Republican government.

It is quite possible that our readers may think we have bestowed more attention upon the foregoing matters than they merit. But when mortified vanity baffled ambition and foul passions inspire falsehood, exposure and refutation must be permitted as both timely and just.

WHY PAY SO SOON!

It has always been my custom to pay my county tax within the first three months that the duplicate is placed in the hands of the collector, whether I thought it my duty or whether by the strong appeals from the collector, or through ignorance. I will not now stop to discuss the question. One thing however somewhat astonishes me, that if every taxpayer were to pay his taxes within the year, how it could be that at the county settlement of January 1869, for the year 1868 there should or could be a balance due from collectors as far back even as 1864. If those collectors have collected from only a part of the tax payers and let the voters go unpaid, it is simply imposing on those good natured, easy, clever fellows who always pay as soon as they are asked to do so. Supposing Mr. A's tax in 1861 was $50 and Mr. B's $50. Now Mr. A pays his $50 in 1864, but Mr. B. does not pay until 1869; five years later. There Mr. B gains over Mr. A on $50, at simple interest $15. The $15 is lost to the county and in laying a tax to meet the same. Or again if Messrs A and B both paid their taxes in 1864, the probability is that the collector has the benefit of the interest which is equally wrong. I believe it belongs to the proper county officers to regulate these things and see that justice is done equally to all. I think that I am expressing the sentiments of the tax payers generally by saying that the proper county officials are to a certain extent responsible for negligence occaisoned by the tax collectors as well as the tax payers. Whether a collector collects the public money and applies it to his own use is a matter that the public should never be so willing to censure one for; much less should the county officers have any reason to rest in doubt on that subject. Take for instance an example: Say Mr. A is required to pay on a day fixed $400, but comes with barely $50. Should it be doubted whether he was going to pay all he collected? I answer No. Examine the duplicate, see the amount collected, and satisfy yourself. If more has been collected than is ready to be paid over, then the time is at hand to take action upon the matter and all doubts are removed. A county Treasurer might feel as though he were taking too much responsibility when he undertook to examine a collector's book, but I think not. More than that I think it his duty. The Treasurer's book and accounts and Commissioners' also, should at all times be free for the inspection of any citizen, and as soon as public officers desire to keep their deeds hid, the thing looks bad. So also it is with the collectors. No man, let him be who he may, if he acts honestly, will at any time refuse an inspection and examination into the accounts that he has been keeping, either for private, individual or in public business. I am looking forward to the settlement to be made for 1869, to see whether the old collectors are still immortalizing themselves by being on that bit of paper signed by the county Auditors, and then published in the county newspapers. I believe the Act of Assembly does not allow the Commissioners to give a duplicate to a collector who is in arrear on any former duplicate. The Commissioners should consider that suit carefully.

I do not think it would be saying too much if I were to urge upon the county officers more equality in the payment of taxes; that when tax was levied and was needed for public use each collector should pay in proportion to the amount of his duplicate. Why is it that the county should pay interest on money and at the same time some townships in the county being in arrears on the duplicates nearly the whole amount? I favor uniformity very much, and am strongly of the opinion that if the best business men of the county were appointed collectors, the tax in most townships would be collected more rapidly and with much more satisfaction.

The Columbian.

Bloomsburg, Pa., Friday Oct. 22, 1869.

E. W. WYNKOOP has started a Book Store in the old Post office, corner of Main and Market Streets.

WE will give the complete official returns of the election in this State by Counties as soon as the table is completed.

PENDLETON made a gallant fight in Ohio, and though he was defeated he cut down Grant's majority of last year over 25,000.

A fine picket fence is being built around the back part of the Court House Yard in accordance with the recommendations of the last Grand Jury.

FOUND.—A couple of pieces of cloth, will be returned to the owner, by proving property and payment of advertisement. Inquire at this office.

MESSRS. FREEZE, Clark, Miliard, Mauger, Silvers and Brockway have gone on a hunting excursion to the Long Pond. It looks very much like a Salt River expedition.

ROBIN MCHENRY will sell valuable personal property at his residence in Benton on Thursday, October 28th. For particulars see advertisement in another column.

AN order known as the Knights of Pythias has been organized in this place, and meet at the Odd Fellows Hall every Monday evening. It starts under the most favorable auspices.

OUR friend Bernard Stohner has finally completed his hotel, and it is now open for the reception of guests. In appearance and arrangement, it will compare favorably with any in this section of the State.

THE County Commissioners, in response to a suggestion of the State Superintendent of Common Schools have allotted a room in the Court House to Mr. Barkley, our County Superintendent.

UNUSUAL labor was thrown upon the election officers at the recent election and it was not just to pay them (or those longest employed) for an additional day. This was promptly done.

EVIDENTLY there was not a full vote at the recent election in the South Conyngham district. This deficency of vote did not change

FARMER'S COLUMN.

It Pays to Keep Good Stock.

While the writer was recently riding in company with a well known stage proprietor, in the eastern part of New York State, the latter pointed out a fine farm lying in a fertile valley, of which he was proprietor.

"Stage routes must be profitable hereabout," we remarked.

"I assure you," was the reply, "that I have never paid a dollar on the farm from my stage route. There," pointing to a handsome brood mare in the field, "is where the farm came from."

The animal, a "Black Hawk," had foaled eleven colts; seven of these had been sold for the aggregate of $8,460, and this had nearly cleared the farm of debt. Great care had been taken in choice of the sire, and as the stock became known, each colt brought a higher price, until the last one sold, a few weeks since, realized the handsome figure of $3,000. So much for good blood—although it should be added that the owner's personal attention was given to each animal. He would trust no other hands to feed, groom, or train them. (Would he have done this with less valuable stock?) The same expense for feed and care of ordinary colts might have brought, say an average of $200 per colt—$1,400 in all;—showing a gain of over $7,000 resulting from breeding first class stock.

Similar examples can be found in every line of farm animals. A breeder of swine in Pennsylvania has realized a fortune in a few years by keeping the best. Vermont sheep raisers have found $5,000 to $10,000 bucks profitable to buy; a poultry fancier of our acquaintance paid $300 for a single trio of fowls, and will make money by the operation.

We do not advocate a mania for paying enormous prices, but these extreme cases prove what every farmer should feel—that he cannot afford to breed inferior animals. The ratio of increase in profit is far greater than the outlay for good stock. The few wide-awake farmers who are taking advantage of this fact have it all the easier, because so many of their brethren have not yet "faith in high farming."—S. E. TODD, in the "Church Union."

The Tomatoe Worm.

We do not believe people are sufficiently alarmed about the worm which last season, for the first time, we believe, made its appearance on tomato vines. A gentleman of this city has within a day or two discovered these poisonous insects in his garden. We copy the following from the Utica Observer:

"Tomatoes in this vicinity are ripening daily, and people should be on their guard lest, in picking them, they should be poisoned by the worms which infest the vines of the tomato plants. There has been considerable question of late as to the manner in which the tomato worm poisons persons, some believing that it did so by means of a sting, while others have asserted that it communicates its poison to any object by squirting it. Recent developments in Syracuse prove that the last theory is the correct one. Three persons have recently died in that city, of poison administered by tomato worms, and the members of the medical profession there are much excited over this new enemy to human existence. Dr. Fuller, of that city, recently captured one of these worms in his garden, and now has it securely enclosed in a glass bottle. He finds upon experimenting that it eats and digests daily about twenty times its own weight of tobacco and tomato leaves. It eats constantly, only stopping to rest occasionally for a minute or two. Investigation shows that the matter ejected by this worm is as poisonous as the bite of a rattlesnake. It can throw this poisonous matter a distance of one or two feet. If any of this matter falls upon the skin of any person, it immediately causes the parts to swell, and in a few hours death will put an end to the agonies of the sufferer. Persons picking tomatoes should wear long wristed gloves, and should in some manner protect the face, if necessary, A very serious question arises in connection with the destruction and death caused by these worms, and one which it is quite important should be answered so fully and clearly as to set all doubst at rest. The question is as to whether a tomato which has been partially devoured by these worms has not had sufficient poisonous matter left upon it to poison the one who may eat it. Until this question is fully answered, the only safe rule to observe is to throw away all tomatoes which have been partly eaten by these worms, be the portion which has been devoured ever so small.

GRINDING HAY FOR FEED.—A writer in the Maine Farmer says: For some time past I have been making observations and experiments in animals' food, and obtaining what I believe to be an improvement, I take the liberty of communicating to your club the results. Grass being the natural food for live stock, it is easily and properly masticated, and as a consequence its nutritious matter is easily extracted. With hay, however, the case is different; for, when fed in sufficient quantities, the animal, especially if its teeth have become flattened by age, attempts to satisfy itself by selecting the leaves and tender branches. To obviate this difficulty and prevent waste, cutting hay in short lengths has to an extent become general, and is, no doubt, a step in the right direction. My belief is that we should go still further, and grind the hay as we now grind oats and corn. It is thought that owing to its glutinous nature, hay could not be reduced to a state of meal, or, if so reduced, the expense attending it would not justify. To test this I constructed a cutter and crusher on new principles, and the result was beyond my most sanguine expectations. Ten tons a day can be ground with one machine, at a cost not to exceed one dollar per ton. Ground in this manner hay is not unlike ground oats, save in color, its weight being from 32 to 36 lbs. per bushel. Mixed with chopped feed, such as corn or oats, it makes a cheap, excellent food. Thus we effect by mechanical means what the hard working or decrepit animal is incapable of doing—perfect mastication.

A GUEST at one of our hotels, the other evening, was discovered by the proprietor rather tenderly embracing the chambermaid. The landlord rebuked him somewhat angrily, and wanted to know the reason of such conduct.

"Simply obeying the rules of the house," said the guest, pointing to a card tacked to the room door. "Don't it read 'Any neglect of servants should be reported at the office? I don't want to be reported at the office for neglect of servants, do I?"

THE YOUNG FOLKS.

Karl Katz.

In the midst of the Hartz forests there is a high mountain, of which the neighbors tell all sorts of stories; how the goblins and farics dance on it by night; and how the old Emperor Redbeard holds his court there, and sits on his marble throne, with his long beard sweeping on the ground.

A great many years ago there lived in a village at the foot of this mountain one Karl Katz. Now Karl was a goatherd, and every morning he drove his flock to feed upon the green spots that are here and there found on the mountain's side. In the evening he sometimes thought it too late to drive his charge home; so he used in such cases to shut it up in a spot amongst the woods, where the old ruined walls of some castle that had long ago been deserted were left standing, and were high enough to form a fold, in which he could count his goats, and let them rest for the night. One evening he found that the prettiest goat of his flock had vanished, soon after they were driven into this fold. He searched everywhere for it in vain; but, to his surprise and delight, when he counted his flock in the morning, what should he see, the first of the flock, but his lost goat! Again and again the same strange thing happened. At last he thought he would watch still more narrowly; and, having looked carefully over the walls, he found a narrow door way, through which it seemed that his favourite made her way. Karl followed, and found a path leading downwards through a cleft in the rocks. On he went, scrambling as well as he could, down the side of the rock, and at last came to the mouth of a cave, where he lost sight of his goat. Just then he saw that his faithful dog was not with him. He whistled, but no dog was there; and he was therefore forced to go into the cave and try to find his goat by himself.

He groped his way for a while, and at last came to a place where a little light found its way in; and there he wondered not a little to find his goat, employing itself very much at its ease in the cavern, in eating corn, which kept dropping from some place over its head. He went up and looked about him, to see where all this corn, that rattled about his ears like a hail-storm, could come from; but all overhead was dark, and he could find no clue to this strange business.

At last, as he stood listening, he thought he heard the neighing and stamping of horses. He listened again; it was plainly so; and after a while he was sure that horses were feeding above him, and that the corn fell from their mangers. What could these horses be, which were thus kept in the clefts of rocks, where none but the goat's foot ever trod? There must be people of some sort or other living here; and who could they be? and was it safe to trust himself in such company? Karl pondered awhile; but his wonder only grew greater and greater, when on a sudden he heard his own name, "Karl Katz!" echo through the cavern. He turned round, but could see nothing. "Karl Katz!" again sounded sharply in his ears; and soon out came a little dwarfish page, with a highpeaked hat and a scarlet cloak, from a dark corner at one end of the cave.

The dwarf nodded, and beckoned him to follow. Karl thought he should like to know a little about who it was that thus sought his company. He asked: but the dwarf shook his head, answering not a word, and again beckoned him to follow. He did so; and winding his way through ruins, he soon heard rolling overhead what sounded like peals of thunder, echoing among the rocks: the noise grew louder and louder as he went on, and at last he came to a court-yard surrounded by old ivy-grown walls. The spot seemed to be the bosom of a little valley; above rose on every hand high masses of rock; wide-branching trees threw their arms overhead, so that nothing but a glimmering twilight made its way through; and here, on the cool smooth-shaven turf, Karl saw twelve strange old figures amusing themselves very sedately with a game of nine-pins.

Their dress did not seem altogether strange to Karl, for in the church of the town whither he went every week to market there was an old monument, with figures of queer old knights upon it, dressed in the very same fashion. Not a word fell from any of their lips. They moved about soberly and gravely, each taking his turn at the game; but the oldest of them ordered Karl Katz by dumb signs, to busy himself in setting up the pins as they knocked them down. At first his knees trembled, as he hardly dared snatch a stolen sidelong glance at the long beards and old-fashioned dresses of the worthy knights; but he soon saw that as each knight played out his game he went to his seat and there took a hearty draught at a flagon, which the dwarf kept filled, and which sent up the smell of the richest old wine.

Little by little Karl got bolder; and at last he plucked up his heart so far as to beg the dwarf, by signs, to let him, too, take his turn at the flagon. The dwarf gave it him with a grave bow, and Karl thought he never tasted anything half so good before. This gave him new strength for his work; and as often as he flagged at all, he turned to the same kind friend for help in his need.

Which was tired first, he or the knights, Karl never could tell, or whether the wine got the better of his head: but what he knew was, that sleep at last overpowered him, and that when he awoke he found himself stretched out upon the old spot within the walls where he had folded his flock, and saw that the bright sun was high up in the heavens. The same green turf was spread beneath, and the same tottering ivy-clad walls surrounded him. He rubbed his eyes and called his dog; but neither dog nor goat was to be seen; and when he looked about him again, the grass seemed to be longer under his feet than it was yesterday; and trees hung over his head, which he had either never seen before, or had quite forgotten. Shaking his head, and hardly knowing whether he was in his right mind, he got up and stretched himself: somehow or other his joints felt stiffer than they were. "It serves me right," said he; "this comes of sleeping out of ones own bed." Little by little he recollected his evening's sport, and licked his lips as he thought of the charming wine he had taken so much of. "But who," thought he, "can those people be that come to this odd place to play at nine pins?"

DON'T INTEND ASTONISHING THE WORLD PUMPING OIL, BUT WATER.

KAY'S PUMPS,

USED AND ADMIRED BY EVERY ONE.

Especially the ladies, being 'truly the ladies' friend, working much lighter and easier than the old tree pump. They don't make such a slop and don't collect so much ice around the floor in the winter, the water not running so long after pumping. Having taken the first premium at every fair they have been exhibited; also recommended by all insurance Companies, on account of getting out more water in less time and with less labor, they throwing a barrel of water a minute. All we ask is a trial, and we are confident we can please you.

Again: It is more simple, it having no lower box packed with tow and tallow, which is the greatest trouble in the tree pump. Another great advantage is, that when you get a new pump you are not compelled to drink for a whole year

PITCH PINE OR BLACK OAK WATER.

Our pump being made of wild cucumber wood, which is free from taste, also lasts longer in water. It has also many other advantages, which can only be found out by using them. They have been in use in the northern part of the State for twenty years; selling rapidly every where.

DRUGS & MEDICINES.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

HAIR DRESSING,

Ayer's Cathartic Pills,

For all the purposes of a Laxative Medicine.

Perhaps no one medicine is so universally required by everybody as a cathartic, nor was ever any before so universally adopted into use, in every country and among all classes, as this mild but efficient purgative Pill. The obvious reason is, that it is a more reliable and far more effectual remedy than any other. Those who have tried it, know that it cured them: those who have not, know that it cures their neighbors and friends, and all know that what it does once it does always—that it never fails through any fault or neglect of its composition. We have thousands upon thousands of certificates of their remarkable cures of the following complaints, but such cures are known in every neighborhood, and we need not publish them. Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates; containing neither calomel or any deleterious drug, they may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar coating preserves them ever fresh and makes them pleasant to take, while being purely vegetable no harm can arise from their use in any quantity.

They operate by their powerful influence on the internal viscera to purify the blood and stimulate it into healthy action—remove the obstructions of the stomach, bowels, liver, and other organs of the body, restoring their irregular action to health, and by correcting, wherever they exist, such derangements as are the first origin of disease.

Minute directions are given in the wrapper on the box, for the following complaints, which these Pills rapidly cure:—

For Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Listlessness, Languor and Loss of Appetite, they should be taken moderately to stimulate the stomach and restore its healthy tone and action.

For Liver Complaint and its various symptoms, Bilious Headache, Sick Headache, Jaundice or Green Sickness, Bilious Colic and Bilious Fevers, they should be judiciously taken for each case, to correct the diseased action or remove the obstructions which cause it.

For Dysentery or Diarrhœa, but one mild dose is generally required.

For Rheumatism, Gout, Gravel, Palpitation of the Heart, Pain in the Side, Back and Loins, they should be continuously taken, as required, to change the diseased action of the system. With such change those complaints disappear.

For Dropsy and Dropsical Swellings they should be taken in large and frequent doses to produce the effect of a drastic purge.

For Suppression a large dose should be taken as it produces the desired effect by sympathy.

As a Dinner Pill, take one or two Pills to promote digestion and relieve the stomach.

An occasional dose stimulates the stomach and bowels into healthy action, restores the appetite, and invigorates the system. Hence it is often advantageous where no serious derangement exists. One who feels tolerably well, often finds that a dose of these Pills makes him feel decidedly better, from their cleansing and renovating effect on the digestive apparatus.
